

The path to safer connections: We're ready when you are.

Cook Medical is committed to enhancing patient safety by reducing potentially harmful misconnections between medical devices. We support the initiative to transition from the Luer-type connection on enteral feeding devices to the ENFit connection that meets the ISO design standard.

Ready to transition?

Let us scan your badge and your local Cook sales representative will reach out to help your hospital begin the path to safer connections on enteral feeding devices.
